What is it like to study this course and how will I be assessed?

Today's generation of children are digital natives, brought up in a world where the Internet is always available, on almost any device. Although the Internet is a great resource, there are risks and dangers associated with it. This course will provide you with the knowledge and skills to help protect yourself and your family when online.

What topics will I study?

The course will look at real-world examples and will include practical session where you can apply the skills learned.

Topics covered include:

- What does E-safety mean
- Raise awareness of E-Safety issues
- How young people use the Internet
- Social Networks
- Mobile Phones and Sexting
- Cyberbullying and online abuse
- Phishing and Scams
- Guidance for keeping your child safe
- How to support your children
- How you can stay safe online

What are the entry requirements?

There are no specific entry requirements but experience of using the Internet and web browsers would be useful.

What can the course lead on to?

If you are interested in general computing, you could consider any of the other IT courses on offer such as Word Processing.
